

We find discerning God's will a confusing, daunting project. But God didn't intend for it to be that way. In fact, the first thing God created was light. John shows us in his Gospel that this divine, light-creating Word of God became human in the person of Jesus. We see in the New Testament that God's will for us isn't a path to walk, it's a person to follow. When we look at Jesus, we see God's will for our lives.

Scripture for Further Reading

Genesis 1:1-5; John 1:1-5, 12-14; Romans 12:1-2; Philippians 2:1-11; John 2:7-11

Questions for Discussion

1. According to John 1, how was Jesus involved in the creation process?
2. Why did John call Jesus "the Word"? How does that connect Jesus to Genesis 1?
3. Why does it matter for us that "the Word became human"?
4. Share a time you were confused about what God's will for your life was.
5. "God's will is not a path to walk, but a person to follow." How does that help you know God's will in a difficult situation?
6. What will you do to know Jesus better this week?

